Bad Art, Good Folk under way

From PCCA Executive Director Vicky Fanberg: For the sixth consecutive year, The Preble County Art Association is presenting Bad Art, Good Folk, an annual fundraiser to support art in Preble County. However, this year will look a bit different.

Given the everchanging landscape and risk faced with large events, we have made the decision to celebrate the work of our Good Folk through a virtual form of our Bad Art, Good Folk fundraiser.

The BAGF fundraiser features local celebrities competing to win the most votes from now until October. Each “Good Folk” is creating a piece of art to be virtually auctioned on Oct. 3.

The 2020 cast is split into three teams and are led by PCAA instructors to create their masterpiece. Erin Abney is coaching Joe Ferriell from the City of Eaton, Todd Appledorn from Heeter Insurance, and Christine Wilson from Butler County ESC. Michelle Buckley is coaching Jane Smith from Essence of Wellness, Chris Fourman from LCNB National Bank, and Craig Springmier from Halderman Farm Management. Robert Coveney is coaching Lauren Morris from Twin Valley Bank, Todd Hennigan from Henny Penny and Rick Hanes from Edison Community College.

The 2020 cast is looking for support from the entire community to raise contributions for the PCAA. Votes cost $1 each and an unlimited amount can be cast. Voting for Good Folk can be done online at www.preblearts.org or in person at Preble Arts, 207 E. Main St. in Eaton.

All votes are tax deductible donations and support the PCAA. The funds raised by this event make art opportunities available and accessible to the community.

This year the BAGF fundraiser will happen in the form of a virtual auction. We have partnered with an online fundraising organization called GiveSmart. This platform gives the capability to do online auctions and virtual fundraising. The auction itself will take place at Preble Arts beginning at 7p.m. on Oct. 3 with only a host, staff, and board members present.

All auction items will be in the gallery at Preble Arts for the first ever Bad Art, Good Folk exhibit! This exhibit of auction items will run from Sept. 8-Oct. 3, allowing as many people as possible to see the artwork first-hand. Of course, we will also be asking for votes along the way. The artwork will be available to bid on through the fundraising website that will also be live streaming the auction on Oct. 3.

This event is sponsored by Edison State Community College, Muha Construction, LCNB National Bank, Reid Health, Kramer & Kramer Inc., Lawn Plus, RDA Group Architects, Twin Valley Bank, Henny Penny, National Bourbon League, Mike Loy’s Collision, Bullen Ultrasonics, Springmier Farms, Halderman Farm Management, Eaton Lions, Simon Insurance, Skyline Chili, Essence of Wellness and Lewisburg Life.

The PCAA has been serving the community since 1990 by offering gallery exhibits, interactive education experiences and programs that integrate art into the community. In addition to these services, we have a strong focus on strengthening the community through art experiences. The PCAA has loyal dedication to youths, seniors and those that are differently-abled.

The PCAA offers Youth for a Creative Community, a program for youth to learn skills, teamwork and collaboration while they make art for the public. In addition, the program RISE: Respect, Integrity, Spirit and Experience focuses on teens in need of guidance and direction. RISE offers a mentoring experience that fosters pride for themselves and the community by having them actively participate in the creative process while learning life skills, responsibility, teamwork and community development. We are proud to work with Your Happy Place, and the Preble County Senior Center, to provide affordable art activities to their clients. More information about this event and all other PCAA programs and activities can be found at www.preblearts.org. Call 937-456-399 or better yet, visit 207 E. Main St. in downtown Eaton to see or take part in art!
