Situational Awareness is the ability to identify, process, and comprehend information about how to survive in an emergency situation. In essence, it's your mental picture of what is going on around you--using information and cues from the environment to determine whether anyone or anything around you is a threat to your health and safety. It is dynamic, hard to maintain, and easy to lose.

Knowing what is going on all the time is very difficult, especially during a high stress survival situation, so it is important to know what behavior is effective in maintaining Situational Awareness.

Join us for this important seminar to learn how to improve the skills you already use on a daily basis to help you enhance your perception of what is happening around you.

Please also mark your calendars for our May 15 luncheon, when we will follow up with a seminar on what to do in the event of an active shooter situation.
