

Community Partner of the Week

While our Low-Line Market vendor booths are dedicated only to locally grown and produced food, the Community Partner of the Week program gives other local businesses a way to reach market-goers. Our partners support the continued existence of the Low-Line Market, which makes our neighborhood a more attractive and valuable place to live and do business.

Thursday Evenings, June – October 2017

June 1 through October 26

3:00pm – 7:30pm

On Thursday evenings from June through October, the Low-Line Market will transform the auxiliary exit of the Southport CTA Brown Line station into a conveniently located and carefully curated farmers market. The goal of the market, which is entering its fifth year, is to create an experience where neighbors can meet and gather while having greater access to a collection of fresh, high-quality produce, proteins, flowers and prepared foods from local farms and vendors.

By the Numbers

- There will be at least 22 markets in the 2017 season
- Approximately 3,500 transit riders disembark at the Southport CTA station during an average Thursday
- Approximately 13,500 pedestrians walk Southport on the average Thursday
- More than 20 vendors from throughout the region bring their products to market each season
- The Low-Line Market has nearly 1,600 followers on Facebook

About the Low-Line Market

- Home Grown: The Lakeview Chamber of Commerce launched the Low-Line Market based on overwhelming demand for a robust and accessible farmers market in the neighborhood. Four years later, the market is still community-driven. Each week, local businesses and entertainers from throughout the neighborhood connect with the community at the market, whether they are selling their goods or sharing in song.
- Good for the Local Economy: By transforming an underutilized lot in the heart of the Southport Corridor, the Low-Line Market strengthens the local economy, keeping dollars in the community while providing vendors a lower point of entry into the neighborhood. Neighboring businesses benefit, too, with market-goers visiting stores and restaurants on market days.
- Environmentally Conscious: The environment is at the heart of the Low-Line Market's mission. By providing increased availability of local food sources within walking distance of a high traffic, residential area, the Low-Line Market contributes to an increase in sustainability within our community. Vendors are handpicked based on their use of sustainable farming practices and responsible sourcing.
- Lakeview's Premier Farmers Market: What began as an experiment has quickly evolved into the neighborhood's premier farmers market. Thousands of residents and commuters pass through the Low-Line Market each week, with many becoming repeat customers. Thanks to excellent vendors and through the support of partners like you, the market continues to grow each year.
