

Lindsey Erin Kroskob

Lindsey is the editor of the Big Timber Pioneer, a member of the local Lions Club, and a volunteer firewater. Lindsey was nominated by Mackenzie Reiss, below is the nomination letter submitted to the Chamber.

“Lindsey Erin Kroskob has a unique platform as the editor of our local newspaper, the Big Timber Pioneer, and I believe she has gone above and beyond in that role – making our local newspaper more inclusive and relevant to this community.

People come in our office on a weekly basis to offer compliments about how the paper has changed over the past couple of years and I credit Lindsey for this achievement. She’s made it her mission to attend and encourage her employees to attend as many local meetings and events as possible, to make sure the Pioneer accurately reflects this community.

This is not an easy task – it means countless hours of work, late nights and personal sacrifice. She doesn’t do it for recognition, I can tell you that. Lindsey is the last person to want to step in front of the camera, but recognition for her constant efforts is well-deserved.

She isn’t just a stellar newspaper editor – she also makes time to support local organizations here in Big Timber. She is an active member of the Big Timber Volunteer Fire Department and not only responds to calls despite her busy schedule, but volunteers for extra trainings. She is a member of our local Lions Club and is taking the EMT class so she can join the ambulance service.

Lindsey really cares and that’s evident, not just how she speaks and writes about this community, but how she acts to make it a better place for all of us.”

Thank you Lindsey for all you do to make Big Timber a better place to Live.
