His efforts are focused on economic development and creating a better business climate on Long Island to strengthen it as a place to live, work and do business. As the key leader, strategist and advocate on all state, local and federal matters impacting Long Island and its business community over the last decade, he successfully helped shape public policy on Long Island and throughout the state and helped secure more than $5 billion to the Long Island region for infrastructure investments.

His efforts at LIPA helped lay the foundation for a clean energy economy on Long Island. As Chief Executive Officer, Law oversaw a $10 billion company with a $4 billion annual operating budget. He brought rates down to a five-year low and secured a rare bond rating increase for the Authority.

Previously, Mr. Law served as Chief Deputy County Executive for Suffolk County, New York, which is the ninth largest county in the country with a population of 1.4 million people. In this capacity, Mr. Law had oversight of all county departments consisting of 12,000 employees and a $2.7 billion budget.

As a member of the firm’s Energy and Environment Practice Group, Mr. Law represented national energy firms, private companies, government agencies and high net worth individuals in the Hamptons and focused his practice in matters relating to all facets of environmental and energy law, land-use, real estate, municipal litigation and representation of clients before federal, state and local agencies.
