

Jim Ryerson

Jim received his undergraduate degree from Penn State University, and his Masters in Business Management from Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore. After 4 years with USF&G/The Travelers Insurance in a HR Generalist capacity, Jim moved to General Electric.

Roles with GE have included experiences in rural North Carolina, inner city Houston, Connecticut and Cincinnati. Jim has worked in GE's Industrial Systems (Electrical Components), Aviation, and Corporate components.

Jim has worked with labor unions as well as union-free manufacturing operations, large engineering organizations (4800 global engineers), global IT/digital organizations, has led the HR implementation of two large acquisition/integrations, served in a Commercial HR capacity, and lead the GE Aviation Compensation and Benefits function. Jim enjoys large, transformational HR work- where there is opportunity to re-align a work culture via driving a vision, operating rigor and strong process.

Jim lives in Montgomery with his wife Claudia, and three school age children, where he enjoys all-things-outdoors, reading, and attending his family's sporting, theatrical and scouting events.