Carson the Chamber Dog is always in search of great food on a dog friendly patio. We’ve had great meals, including one face-to-face with snarling and resentful chihuahuas. We been surrounded by lovely shaded space as I ate stale chips and questionable salsa. We’ve dined two feet away from a busy four lane mini freeway and sat next to more dumpsters than you’d care to hear about.

High on our list is West Sacramento’s own Sail Inn Grotto. Yep… Carson is a proud Grotto Dog. Fresh water, hugs and treats for him. Excellent food and a beautiful patio for me. (Okay, I get hugs too.) The best of both worlds is less than a mile and a half from our house.

Of course we also appreciate Bike Dog Brewery. Great beer, food trucks, and dog lovers as far as the eye can see. You’ll also find us enjoying the patio and creamy delights at Devil May Care Ice Cream. Seriously. Amazing ice cream. Try the vanilla!

This Fall issue of West Sac Works magazine invites you to discover your own favorites. You’ll find interviews with your neighbors, who share some of their hidden favorite West Sac spots. An interview with our Park Director, and an infographic of the City of West Sacramento’s Parks Master Plan. You’ll also find a great restaurant directory for your use.

The good news is that all these adventures and experiences are available to you without the need for Ruby Slippers. #WestSacBestSac? Absolutely!

Fun people do fun things, and our little city offers a diversity of activities. The following stories might give you a few ideas about how to spend your nights and weekends. From music to outdoor activities, West Sac has something for everyone.
Described as a “mix of raw energy, pulsing groove, and juicy horn lines coloring tightly crafted songs,” Joy & Madness can get an audience up out of their seats. With their own roots in funk and soul, they’ve shared stages with Tower of Power, Trombone Shorty, and Collective Soul.

Jeremy and Rebecca “Nyxi” Springer and Hans Eberhardt formed the band in the Springers’ Gateway Oaks house. The band, that also includes Tony Marvelli and Danny Sandoval, performs throughout California and Nevada, but the group calls West Sacramento home.

“This band is really the dream come true,” said Jeremy, who plays keyboards and writes many of Joy & Madness’s songs. “The orchestration, musicianship, and everyone in the band. I’m grateful that it happened.”

Nyxi, a bassist and singer, and Jeremy met through music. As a Davis High School student, Jeremy had a four-boy acapella group, Denim. After high school, Denim played clubs and produced records. After a producer suggested adding girls and instruments, Nyxi joined the band. She and Jeremy became friends and then fell in love.

Nyxi said, “A band has its own kind of relationship, and when band members date or get married, it brings in a different kind of relationship. Denim had a rule against dating, so we had to leave. The irony is that we’re still together and playing music when no one else from the original band is.”

Their next band was The Nibblers. That band needed a place to practice, and Jeremy and Nyxi were ready to buy a house. Long-time Davis residents, they came to WestSac Funk
Sacramento because the houses were more affordable. Shortly afterward, Hans moved into a house a few doors away. “That’s when we discovered who [front man and vocalist] Hans Eberbach was,” Jeremy said. “Hans brings so much freewheeling energy to the stage, he’s literally broken right through the floorboards.”

Like most of the band members they also have full-time jobs. Jeremy is CFO of Frontier Energy and Nyxi is a special education teacher and recently returned to college to get an administration degree to become a principal. “Joy & Madness plays as often as we can,” Jeremy stated, “But it’s hard to line up eight people’s schedules. We average about two shows a month at places like Harlow’s and the Torch Club, but also at street fairs and music festivals.”

The band connects with the audience and pulls everyone together into the excitement of the experience. “We’re true believers in music as a shared experience,” Nyxi concluded, “we give a performance that leaves everybody inspired, sweaty, and full of joy.”

Visit Joy & Madness.com to listen to the band’s two EPs and follow their Facebook page for upcoming performances.

Have you heard about Cyclocross?

Cyclocross is a specific type of bike racing. For the most part, the course is off-road but there are sometimes portions of pavement included in the course. You can expect to encounter grass, dirt, mud, gravel, sand, and a whole slew of other assortments and combinations. The races are based the number of laps a rider completes during a set time, as short as 30 minutes for beginners to as long as 60 minutes for pros. Matthew and Darcy Hargrove are the brains and heart behind the West Sacramento Cyclocross Grand Prix, an internationally certified race in early October that attracts top competitors from around the world.

Matthew, who grew up in West Sacramento, wasn’t always a rider. He hopped on a bike in about 2010 to lose weight—he was over 300 pounds. “Darcy was already a rider and I decided to join her. I lost about 100 pounds by walking and cycling, and I really enjoyed it. By the time I lost all the weight, she and I were doing 100-mile road rides. Our kids were little, and bike riding was our family activity.”

It was one of those family rides that introduced the Hargroves to cyclocross. “We were on the American River Bike Trail and saw a small group of people standing in a field,” Matthew said. “We cruised over to them and learned about cyclocross.” Darcy added, “It was a coincidence that one of them was an old friend from elementary school! We started showing up every Wednesday for a pick-up cyclocross race.”

Everyone is welcome!

The Wednesday rides gradually moved to West Sacramento’s Southport industrial area long before any buildings were there. Now the pick-up rides are 10:00 Sunday mornings at the Barge Canal Park on Jefferson. “Everyone is welcome,” Matthew said, “Just be ready for challenging ride up and down hills on dirt trails and gravel roads.”

Do you JUMP?

Matthew and Darcy are enthusiastic about all forms of cycling, and were one of the early advocates for bike lanes in West Sacramento. These days, Matthew often commutes by JUMP bike to his downtown job, and the Hargroves rode JUMP bikes to our interview at the Sail Inn.

JUMP is an electrified bike share program. The red bikes have electric motors that run as you pedal, and can be picked up and dropped off anywhere in the service territory that includes Davis, West Sacramento, downtown and midtown. The bikes cost $1 for every 15 minutes of use. “It’s an easy way to bike to downtown, and you don’t get sweaty,” Matthew enthused. “Twice neighbors stopped to us to ask questions,” he said to explain why they were late.

As Matthew and Darcy recounted the questions neighbors asked about the bikes, Councilmember Babs Sandeen was listening to the story. “Thanks for being the Jump Bike ambassador,” she laughed.

1. From The Barn to Bryte Park
“Once you get to the Broderick Boat Ramp, look for the gate on the north side. Through that gate is a whole network of walking and biking trails that eventually take you to Bryte Park. It’s a beautiful place for a trail ride or run.”

2. Along the Deep Water Channel
“Starting from the Barge Canal Park you get a great ride on gravel road and trails all along the water. You can see people kayaking and paddleboarding in the canal.”

3. The Levee
The levee at the end of Enterprise Blvd. has a public trail at the top that’s at the end of the Yolo Wildlife Preserve. Turn left and you can ride all the way to Rio Vista. Turn right and you go under I-80 and end by CHP academy. At right time of night, you can see a beautiful sunset and watch the bats come out from under the bridge.”

Simon Antill of the Sacramento Yacht Club helps make West Sacramento the place to be for those who boat, row, and sail. You don’t need to be an expert to enjoy being out on our beautiful waterways.

In the winter, when the levees are open and the bypass is flooded, West Sacramento is an island. We sit at the confluence of the American and Sacramento Rivers, which flow through both the ship channel and the Delta, down to the bay. Even this far from the ocean, our waterways are tidally-influenced. We are simultaneously part of the Central Valley and directly connected to the sea, so it’s no surprise that with 1,500 miles of navigable waterway, we’re in prime boating area.

Smon Antill is the owner of Sacramento Tech Exchange and vice-commodore of the Sacramento Yacht Club on South River Road. An avid boater, Simon and his wife own a runabout and a four-bedroom yacht. “As soon as the kids are off to college, the big boat will be our year-round home.”

He described the Yacht Club as a social club for boaters. “We’re a group of like-minded people who want to have fun on the water,” he said. “You don’t have to have a boat to be in the Yacht Club, most people who join without a boat quite quickly become boat owners,” he laughed.

The Yacht Club arranges 10 to 12 destination cruises a year, from a quick run to Swabbie’s or the Virgin Sturgeon to weekend long adventures through the Sacramento Delta. “Once a year, we go all the way to the San Francisco Bay, and a handful of boats go out into the blue water of the ocean. This year they went as far south as Monterey,” he stated.

Simon’s family keeps their boating more local. “We like to go up the American River because the water is beautiful—so clear and calm. You can tie up, hang out, barbecue, and the kids can swim.” The family also takes the boat to Old Sacramento, which seems like a quick trip from West Sac. “The Old Sac public dock is free to use. We can pull in right behind the Delta King and then go up to The Firehouse or Rio City Café and have a nice dinner.”

Even if you’re not a boat owner, you can get on the water. Several marinas in Isleton and Bethel Island in the Delta rent boats, wave runners, and other water craft. Or rent a pontoon boats at the boat ramp in Sacramento’s Miller Park for a day on the Sacramento or American Rivers. West Sacramento’s Sailing Club and Rowing Club, both in the Port of Sacramento turnaround basin, can get you on the water under your own power.

The Lake Washington Sailing Club has a fleet of Sunfish sailboats and windsurfing boards, and members give sailing lessons and regular open houses. Club members have daily use of the club facilities, dock, ramp, and clubhouse; and can use the club’s windsurfing boards and pre-rigged sails. You do not need to be a boat owner to be a member of the Sailing Club.

River City Rowing Club is a mecca for sculling. Adults and youth can take lessons, or join the club and compete in tournaments. RCRC offers summer Learn to Row programs for juniors and adults, and makes canoes and kayaks available to youth groups.

Simon said the best way to get your feet wet with boating is to join the Yacht Club and make friends with people who own boats. “You meet a whole bunch of people to have fun with, and you’ll be a boat owner as soon as you see how fun it is!”

“We’re a group of like-minded people who want to have fun on the water. - Simon Antill

Great for Business

www.westsacramento.chamber.com
Three different entertainment industries have settled in West Sacramento and nearby Clarksburg: wine makers, craft breweries, and baseball. In the next few pages you’ll find a snapshot of each, and how you can best enjoy what they have to offer.
Rayla Maier and her finance Kilian McMann had never visited the The Old Sugar Mill, so they (along with Lisa and Matt McMann, Kilian’s parents) joined me for an afternoon wine tasting. Expecting a modern-looking food court Rayla exclaimed, “this place is huge!” when we pulled into the parking lot.

A large central hallway in the main building leads toward the Heringer Estates tasting room. Jim Doolittle was waiting for us with a table set with wine glasses, crackers, and literature about the Heringer Estates, the wines, and the surrounding area.

Jim poured us a bubbly rose and shared Heringer family history. “Seven generations of Heringers have been farming here,” he told us. “It’s one of the reasons that you’ll find us at farmer’s markets in the region. The family identifies with farmers and likes to support them.”

Jim then poured a Sauvignon Blanc and asked us about our favorite wines. He showed us how to taste wine by examining color over sheets of white paper, understanding the legs, and the importance of smelling before we tasted, and his tutelage helped us recognize notes of pear, plum, berries, and other flavors when we visited other tasting rooms. Heringer has a long list of wines they produce from their own grapes, and Jim customized our tasting based on the wines we told him we liked. (We tasted six wines at Heringer.)

He brought out the Purple Thread, a blend of grapes that the winemaker chooses. Purple Thread also helps to support the Clarksburg library Jim explained. Lisa, author of The Unwanteds series and other best-selling books, was especially delighted, noting that “nothing goes together better than books and wine.”

Rayla was particularly impressed with the Sauvignon Blanc, which she called “light and crisp like cider, not what I expected in wine.” After thanking Jim we headed to Elevation Ten.

Jessica Devlin sat us at a table typically reserved for wine club members. Each of the wineries we visited has a wine club, which costs nothing to join. Club members commit to buying a certain number of bottles of wine a year, which they can pick up at the tasting room or have delivered. Additionally Club members can receive discounts on other bottles of wine, free tastings, invitations to special events, and use the wine club private areas.

Of the two Elevation Ten tasting menus, we opted for the five-wine list and began with a sparkling wine the winery also

Wine Tasting in Clarksburg

In 1934 Crystal Sugar built a collection of brick buildings as a refinery for turning sugar beets into sugar. A railroad spur (now the Clarksburg Trail) ran through West Sacramento to serve the mill. In the late 1990s when the sugar mill closed, the Heringers (a local farming family), gave this Clarksburg venue a second life. The Old Sugar Mill re-opened in 2010 as a winery and outdoor picnic space.
uses for hibiscus mimosas. Jessica explained: “It’s sparkling wine with hibiscus syrup and topped with a candied hibiscus.”

Is wine-swirling really necessary? Jessica told us that swirling helps release the hundreds of different aroma compounds found in wine. “Aromas in wine are called ‘stereoisomers’ and are mirror-images to smells we are familiar with, like blackberry, cedar, and vanilla. Mixing oxygen with wine helps deliver the aroma, which makes wine more enjoyable.”

There is patio seating nestled between old brick walls and clambering vines, as well as a large grassy area for picnics. “Imagine sitting out here in the evening with a bottle of wine,” Matt said. Lisa said that it sounded like a date night plan. Heeding the advice to pace ourselves, we took a food break. On weekends there are also food trucks, but many people bring picnics and sit on the lawn or the patios of the tasting rooms.

Finally we visited the Clarksburg Wine Company. Tasting room manager Sue Eller has been at the Old Sugar Mill since it opened. “It’s been fun to see it grow,” she said. “Initially we only had five wineries and the building was a diamond in the rough. As people started discovering what we had here, more wineries opened tasting rooms. Now we have 15 wineries on the weekends, and many others within a few miles. It keeps growing.”

Sue presented us with a menu of about 15 wines to choose from. We started with two different rose wines and our group compared notes between the fruitier and drier versions. From there we branched out, trying sparkling wines and sweeter reds, or heartier, more robust reds.

At the end of our tasting Sue told us that the best thing about wine tasting at the Old Sugar Mill is the diversity of wines. Many different types of grapes grow in the Clarksburg area, and each winemaker puts his or her own spin on the wine, from the source of the grapes to type of barrel for aging. She said, “You’re going to get so many opportunities to fall in love with a wine. It might be something that you said you’ve never liked or something that you’ve never tried before.”

Our small group agreed. We each tried a wine that surprised us. I’ve never really cared for red wine, yet came home with red win from Elevation Ten. Kilian and Rayla—the non-wine drinkers—went home with a bottle of Clarksburg Wine Company’s Sparkling Wine and Heringer’s Sauvignon Blanc, and Lisa and Matt took home a bottle of Clarksburg’s C. Vociferous, the “smoky little girl.”

As we walked back through the central hallway filled with pictures of the old mill, we were already planning our next wine tasting excursion.

The Bogle family farms on 1,200 acres in Clarksburg growing grapes for their own wines, and selling to a few select local vintners. The tasting room is at the vineyard on County Road 144 is open daily and hosts special events on weekends through October, like al fresco dinners and movie nights. Visit the Bogle website for directions and more information.

Muddy Boot Wine is a small winery founded by twin brother David and Phil Ogilvie and their “lone twin” best friend Tom Merwin. Find their wines and enjoy tastings at local retailers like Roco Wine and Spirits.

Tips from the EXPERTS

Our wine tasting hosts offered the following advice for getting the most out of your wine tasting adventure:

- Plan to visit three or four of the 15 wineries per visit. Expect to spend 30-to-45 minutes tasting wines and learn about the differences.

- Pace yourself. Take breaks between the tasting rooms so you can really tell the differences in the wine.

- Come during the week or before 2:00 on Saturdays and Sundays.

- If you’re coming with six or more people, all ahead. Some of the tasting rooms will take reservations.

- Make sure you eat. Food trucks are on site on weekends, and you’re welcome to bring a picnic.

- Enjoy the outdoor areas, patios, and architecture at the Old Sugar Mill. Get a glass or bottle of wine and sit outside to take it all in.

- Remember the sun — bring sunscreen and hats.
Hidden in among the Southport warehouses are a thriving cluster microbreweries, which cater to our hops-desire with seemingly endless creativity and passion. And they all share two things: community and great beer.

Although you may have sampled at least some of the tremendous variety the breweries offer, it may have been easy to miss whole list of awesomeness our West Sac breweries have offer. So we thought we’d help with that. Also, remember you’ll often find food trucks parked in the lots — although we recommend you check first.

Yolo Brewing Company is all about creating a place for community to come together and share their joy. And what better way than through music? If you’re looking for a place to let go of the week, and settle into the weekend, Yolo Brewing has you covered with live music every Friday and Sunday night. Whether indoors, or on the patio, enjoy your favorite brew and listen to local musicians. Yolo Brewing Company also has trivia night every Tuesday (at 6:00pm). The welcoming and fun vibe at Yolo Brewing Company only gets better with drinks and some friendly competition (and yes, people come in teams). Yolo Brewing even offers specialized trivia nights – like their upcoming Disney trivia. And if you want more… check out their calendar of events to stop by for vinyl spinning or, with some liquid courage, maybe even a karaoke night. Yolo Brewing Company is a great place to bring your family and friends. YoloBrew.com

Jackrabbit Brewing Company believes that craft beer is meant to be enjoyed with old friends and new so they offer a living room — with a tap. Whether you bring your own game, or grab one from their shelves, Jackrabbit is a great place to chill out with friends. And when games aren’t hitting the spot, they like to switch things up by putting on some fun, free events. Events like free movie nights for movies like Black Panther, Ghost Buster or Anchorman. Instead of having your family movie night in on your couch, try checking out the calendar available on their website to see what movies will spike your interest. They host these movie nights about twice a month, so there is always an opportunity to check out something new and fun. JackRabbitBrewingCompany.com

Bike Dog Brewing Company was founded on three major principles- bikes, dogs, and great beer. As the first tap room in West Sacramento, this local favorite certainly lives up to its name. If you love to ride your bike and you love beer, look just inside the doors of Bike Dog Brewing for great, safe bike parking. If you don’t want to drink alone, Bike Dog Brewing encourages you to bring your furry family member. The folks for decades West Sacramento was a sleepy industrial port with cheap land, large warehouses and easy freeway access. But that is rapidly changing, and one of the best ways to see that transformation in real time is our bustling Brewery District.
at Bike Dog know that dogs, just like drinks, bring people together. Foodies from across the region come to check out the extensive rotating list of food trucks to pair with a favorite brew. If dogs aren’t your thing, consider one of Bike Dog Brewing’s many community events. Maybe you try your skills at their annual Shred Dog event - a scheduled bike race for any all interested participants regardless of experience. Check out Bike Dog Brewing Company’s schedule of events, list of rotating food trucks, great beer. Grab the family and enjoy a relaxing afternoon soon. BikeDogBrewing.com

RoCo Wine & Spirits isn’t a brewery... but it’s definitely the place to sample beer, and more! Although bottle shop and taproom owner Rohit Nayyar does grow hops, he sells them to other breweries. His goal is to bring craft beer to a broader audience, encouraging basic Bud and Coors drinkers to just try something new. Settled across from Tsuki Sushi, RoCo has ample outdoor seating and an abundance of taps that include ciders, darks, IPAs and everything in-between. Or start with a 4-pack sample of our local WestSac brewers — just to shake it up. RoCo also hosts tons of events. Visit their Facebook to see list of upcoming events (which includes their RoCo Rare Whiskey Day in December!), or find out what’s new RoCo — because there is always something to explore. What do you do for the River Cats?
I was a fan before I was in baseball and I’m thrilled to be working with the River Cats. I have a dual job—I manage the press box for home games, and make travel arrangements for visiting teams and individual players as they move up and down from double A to the majors.

You mentioned that the 2018 season ended with a 10-day home streak. Does that mean you worked for 10 days?
Yes, the full-time staff have things to do every day to make the game happen, plus we have all the seasonal employees working on maintenance, concession, guest services, and security working the whole time, too.

Do you take time off when the team is away?
We try to work some half-days, but work still needs to get done. We’re always getting ready for the next home games. We also have special events happening when the team is away—parties, 5k and 10k runs, and special events like Fourth of July Fireworks.

What happens at the end of the season? Does everyone go home and the ballpark is empty?
We all take a deep breath and take a little time off, but Raley Field is still a flurry of activity. It’s just a different kind of workplace for a few months.
The events team organizes get-togethers that range from parties in the Legacy Club to small meetings in the suites. We also host ticketed events like our Annual Brewfest and concerts—Nellie is in October and Jake Owens, a country artist, is playing in November. The events team does a great job of filling the schedule to keep Raley Field happening, which keeps our game day staff with us during the off-season, too. Raley Field is a unique venue and because it’s privately owned, we can try fun things like the skating rink a couple of years ago and, for one season, we had arena football.
In February and March, right before our season starts, Sac State and UC Davis will play on the field, and so do local high schools from around the region. We have a pretty packed schedule!

Are you still out in the community, too?

Dinger’s schedule actually gets busier when the season is over. He has school events, Little League stuff, and he’s very present far and wide in the community. Our sales staff are busy as well. We actually hire sales staff to start renewing season tickets and get new business for 2019. We’re also renewing corporate partnerships and giving other businesses the opportunity to partner with Raley Field.

When does planning for next season start?

We start almost immediately. Food and beverage starts changing up the menu. They brainstorm ideas for new food and drinks, and new types of concessions to keep things exciting for the fans. The maintenance staff is in full gear making improvements around the ballpark, from adding on the Legacy Club to repainting the whole ballpark. People may not notice, but it makes a big difference in making fans feel welcome. The marketing team starts planning next year’s promotions and I start working on next year’s travel schedule with the other teams, which requires a lot of logistics and planning. The executive staff attend the MiLB Promotional Seminar, which attracts teams from around the country. The River Cats have always been at the forefront of new ideas and are leaders in the MiLB community, but we also hear great ideas from other teams and other ballparks.

What are one or two of the areas in which the River Cats are leaders?

Our social media—we’re one of the first teams to have a full-time social media and website person. We recognize that social and web are a growing form of communication for all business, and how important it is for sports teams. We can reach and interact with our fan base, and engage with them in the ballpark and in the community. This year, Chip Maxson (River Cats General Manager) is speaking about our Membership Experience Specialists who take care of our season ticket holders, whom we call members. Members can come to special batting practices, meet the team for lunch one day and have autograph sessions; just different things that make it more of an experience.

Where do the players go in the off season?

The players are employed by the San Francisco Giants all the time. Some of our players join the Giants in San Francisco; major league rosters expand from 25 to as many as 40 beginning September 1. Most of the other players go home until spring training starts.

Is That a Service Dog or a Pet?

Assistance animals provide emotional support, companionship, and therapy. Laws about bringing animals into public places differ based on the category. Know your rights and when a pet might create a danger to a disabled person who needs a service dog.

<tr>
<th>SERVICE DOG</th>
<th>SUPPORT ANIMAL</th>
<th>THERAPY ANIMAL</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Dogs that are trained to help people with disabilities perform specific tasks. May or may not wear a vest. Is not a pet.</td>
<td>Medically prescribed animals that provide therapeutic benefit. Must be restrained. Handler should have medical certification. Is not a pet.</td>
<td>Therapy in which the animal is a form of treatment. Must be restrained and wear identification. Is considered a pet.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

ARE THEY LEGALLY ALLOWED HERE?

- At any place the public is allowed without additional cost, including restaurants. Employees can ask what service the dog is trained to provide.
- Only on airplanes (dogs only), in housing, and places of education. Other places by special permission. Employees can ask handler for medical documentation.
- Only by special permission.

WHAT ARE THE REQUIREMENTS?

- The dog must be under the handler's control at all times. Some dogs are under voice control. If the it misbehaves, the business can legally remove the dog.
- The animal must be restrained by leash or crate at all times, not carried or ride in a cart. If it misbehaves, the business can legally remove the animal.
- The business makes arrangements with each handler.
West Sacramento is on target to have five acres of park open space for every 1,000 residents, which is more than most other U.S. cities. Currently we have 38 city parks which provide more than 150 acres of open space. We asked Parks & Recreation Director Cindy Tuttle what she thinks most people should know about West Sac’s parks—but probably don’t.

Tuttle began, “people tend to think of parks in terms of sports, but most of us aren’t athletes. That’s why we offer a range of leisure activities—from guitar lessons and tippy-toes dance classes to craft classes and board game nights.” West Sac recreation options cater to all ages, interests and capacities. The West Sacramento Rec Center is a perfect example. With a lap pool, two curly slides, a lazy river and a large, gently sloping recreation pool, table seating and a grassy area for sun shades, the center is a great place to bring the family to beat the heat or do laps year-round. But that’s not all! Tuttle noted that the Center also offers unexpected choices, “…climb on the rock wall or take a healthy cooking class. Child care is available for adults who want to take yoga classes or use the full gym.”

You probably already know about the Clarksburg Trail, but Cindy reminded us of the new Joey Lopes Park [Sycamore off of West Capital]. As we talked about the Broderick Boat Ramp (on the river north of the I-street bridge) and Barge Canal Access Park (off of Jefferson), she let us in on some little-known awesomeness: Parks and Rec contracts with SacSups-Sacramento Stand Up Paddlesurf to rent SUPs. “You can call SacSups to reserve a boat and they’ll meet you in either place—and they give lessons!” (916-607-5720). Another gem is the Bryte Park Kaboom Playground project (along Riverbank Road). Literally 100’s of volunteers came together to make the 9,000 sf park a reality. And don’t forget our River Walk Park, with its historic markers and abundant river-side picnic space.

Located in the Community Center on West Capitol Avenue, the Community Center’s Black Box Theater is a performance venue for bands, plays, and special events. “…you can rent the theater, and the other rooms in the Community Center, for your own events,” Tuttle added. Cindy also pointed out the gallery exhibit that the West Sacramento Historical Society maintains in the lobby.

“We have great spaces where people like to come—where they have a sense of being free and intrinsically motivated,” Cindy noted, “and partnerships with groups like West Sac Play, Read Around Yolo, and the Washington Unified School District are making our parks the hub of the wheel of life.”

There is much more to explore and more in the works! West Sacramento Parks & Rec publishes a Playbook twice a year that lists leisure activities, sports leagues, and special events for the coming season. For more discoveries, or to check out the Playbook, visit: WestSacFun.org
The City of West Sacramento recently surveyed residents about what they want to see in future parks, open spaces, and recreational programming. These survey responses will be used to help prioritize and guide investments for the next 10 years as part of the Parks and Open Space Master Plan update.
Go Bowling
Capitol Bowl, on West Capitol Avenue, is a beautiful, family-owned and family-friendly business. Michael O’Connell’s family often bowls there. “It’s a great place for us to get together and spend time,” he said, “We especially like the glow bowling. Capitol Bowl is clean, has a fantastic bar, and great food. The kids have fun while the adults get a little competitive,” he smiled.

Sing Karaoke
The first Thursday of every month, Lenise’s Café has karaoke for the whole family. “I sang karaoke for the first time in my life at Lenise’s,” said West Sac Web’s Danny Luna. “It’s a supportive place to break out in song. Now I’m a regular.”

Bring Out Your Inner Artist
The West Sacramento Arts Guild meets the third Thursday of the month at 6:00pm at Gallery 1075 inside the Community Center. Meet other local artist of all skills levels and mediums. Share your ideas, learn new techniques, and participate in group exhibits.

Expand Your Mind
From nationally known metaphysical speakers and comedians to concerts by local rock bands and opera singers, the Center for Spiritual Awareness hosts a variety of events in its lovely facility just off Harbor Blvd. “Come to the opera; come to hear a speaker. We believe our programs make people happy and bring more passion their lives,” said Rev. Dr. Georgia Prescott.

Visit the Library
The Turner Library has a wealth of programs for adults and children, from club meetings to Meet the Author nights. Lisette Castillo regularly takes her children to programs at the Turner Library. “They really love science and like they like the programs about fossils, space, and dinosaurs,” she said. Several activities at the library are offered in Spanish and Russian.

Test Your Trivia
Thursday is trivia night at the VFW on Drever Street. The VFW is a clubhouse for military veterans, but Thursday are open to everyone. Come for dinner—great food at a low cost—and bring your team for some serious competition. Amy Goldman said, “Our trivia team is ‘Teachers get stuff wrong, too.’ Except we’ve won five out of six times.” The winners get bragging rights…until next week.

Watch the Game
Two great choices for football watching—the West Sac Sports Bar on Jefferson Blvd. and Kickin’ Mule on West Capitol and Harbor. Both places boast multiple large screen TVs, great food, bar specials and a crowd that’s ready to cheer every touchdown. Both bars also show pay-per-view prize fights. “We go to West Sac Sports Bar for Monday night football and delicious dollar tacos,” said Lori Hawkins, owner fo Mid-Valley Funding. “It’s close to home and we love the tight-knit relationships we’ve made with the owners and other customers.”

Stretch and Strengthen
Take a Vinyasa or Yin yoga class at West Sac Yoga on 15th Street or at the Rec Center. Schedule a strength training session at CaliFit Systems on Riverside Parkway or West Sacramento Strength and Conditioning on Jefferson Blvd.

Drive, Chip, and Putt
Nearby Davis has two excellent golf courses. Wildhorse is an award-winning public golf course. Trees, bunkers, ponds, and Covell Creek frame each hole from the tee box. Self-described “decent golfer” Mark Stockdale frequents Wildhorse. “It’s a good family-owned, well-maintained course. Even if you’re not a golfer, you can hit balls on the driving range or use the putting green. And they have a great café and bar. El Macero Country Club is a private par-72 championship golf course and has a year-round heated swimming pool and dual tennis courts. Club membership includes use of the restaurant, bar, and patio café, and a host of special events throughout the year.

Walk Through Time
Spend a quiet afternoon at the Davis Cemetery District & Arboretum, which includes walking paths, labyrinths, and gardens. The eastern half of the grounds are home to an historic swale, perennial mounds, and a wildflower meadow. See the Gallery 1855 exhibit inside the iconic office building and go on a search for historic stones. (Can you find the one that came all the way from China? Hint: it has wonderful dragons.)

10 Ways to Tell if it’s Phishing

Impostor and phishing emails are on the rise and criminals are getting sneakier. The FBI reports that email scams siphoned $1.3 billion from victims—and that’s just from the 800 daily complaints they receive. Fake emails succeed because they look and feel legitimate; protect yourself with these 10 tips.

1. DON’T TRUST THE DISPLAY NAME
   - Check the “From” email address; if looks suspicious, delete the email.

2. LOOK, BUT DON’T CLICK LINKS
   - Hover your mouse over links in the body of your email to see the address. Don’t click weird URLs.

3. CHECK FOR MISTAKES
   - Companies are careful about spelling and grammar.

4. ANALYZE THE SALUTATION
   - Is the email addressed to a vague “Valued Customer?” Legitimate businesses use your name.

5. ASK FOR PERSONAL INFORMATION
   - Banks, shipping companies, and online retailers never ask for confidential information.

6. BEWARE OF URGENCY
   - Threats like “your account has been suspended” are designed to scare you into action.

7. REVIEW THE SIGNATURE
   - Legitimate businesses always provide contact details. Check for them.

8. NEVER OPEN ATTACHMENTS
   - Every attachment can contain malware. Only open or save documents that you are expecting.

9. SUSPECT WARNINGS
   - An email, phone call, or pop-up warning you that you have a virus is probably a scam.

10. ASK FOR MONEY TRANSFERS
    - Even with pictures of cars, rental houses, or office space, don’t send money until you meet the person.

Recycling is easier than you think.

Just keep it simple.

Nationally, on average, 25% of all items in recycling bins are actually trash. That’s a big problem impacting recycling efforts in our community and around the world. You can help by following three simple rules:

- RECYCLE BOTTLES, CANS & PAPER
- KEEP ITEMS CLEAN & DRY
- NO PLASTIC BAGS, KEEP ITEMS LOOSE
