

Laura Zorc

Personal and Professional Bio

Laura Zorc was born in 1971 to a young mother and an Army GI, near Fort Knox, KY. Her humble roots have always motivated her to push herself to be an “over-comer.”

In her senior year at the University of North Georgia where she studied Business Administration majoring in accounting, Laura was selected to study International Business hosted by Cambridge University in the UK.

Returning home, Laura was hired to head operations at a shop-at-home television station in Atlanta. There she honed her problem-solving skills when developing complex accounting systems and procedures to efficiently organize and manage a multi-million dollar business.

Laura moved to Orlando after being hired to implement the payment processing systems for a new shop-at-home channel.

Laura’s focus changed when her four children started school.

Prior to being elected to the school board in 2016, Laura served on the Imagine Charter PTA board, founding member of Florida Parents Against Common Core, appointed to Governor Rick Scott’s Education Committee as the parent representative, and twice elected President of the IRC Parent Teacher Association.

Laura has had the honor of serving for three years on the School Board as legislative liaison, economic development liaison, and for two consecutive years as Chairwoman.
