March 18, 1936. Lenora Lake

More progress is being made now at cutting lake as far as a casual observer can see, than has been made since before the cold weather set in. For the past week the men of being engaged in completing the puddle trench and puddling it. This work makes a rapid change in the appearance of the project and things naturally appear to be moving along faster.

The huge pile driver has been set up in the east end of the puddle trench and quite a lot of sheet piling has already been driven down to the loose sand to a solid footing of clay. When this work is completed, it will be possible to proceed with the puddling of the east half of the trench, the west end now nearing completion.

A considerable amount of earth work has already been raised on either side of the puddle trench and the dam is now beginning to take shape. Every dump truck full of earth that he dumped on the damn takes the project that much further away from the threat of a possible early spring flooding filling the puddle trench and ruining the work already done. It is thought that this danger has already been practically overcome, so rapidly has the work progressed.

Just as the ball begins rolling again, however, comes the word Lieutenant Loyd Sprinkle, who is been in charge of the project as superintendent, has chosen to transfer to a similar project at Plainville, as a result of certain circumstances which have arisen in conjunction with this project, and that Carl Hayes, resident engineer, has also resigned to devote his entire attention to his position as Norton County engineer. No success has yet been named to succeed Hayes, so far as we know, but Orrin Neeley, engineer in charge of the new Colby city Hall project, has been chosen to succeed Lieutenant Sprinkle and will arrive tomorrow or the next day to take charge.

While both Sprinkle and Hayes have been instrumental in keeping the local project hustling right along, we are sure that no great loss of efficiency of management will result in this project, Mr. Neely possessing a very fine record as an engineer and superintendent.

Through our associations with Mr. Sprinkle since he became a resident of Lenora, we have all come to like him and his family very much, and naturally regret to see them leave. The Plainville project on which he will be stationed from now on, however, is just a big project as Cutting Lake and should keep him out of mischief. Good Luck Loyd

Mr. Hayes, while no longer actively connected with the Cutting Lake project will continue to provide a valuable asset to the county and the county engineer, and while he is not so well-known in Lenora, by virtue of his residence in Norton as is Lieutenant Sprinkle he has done much to put the Cutting Lake project in operation and his efforts to secure the project and get immediate action on them have made a great deal not only to Lenora but to the county as a whole.

Work resumed at Larrick Park beginning Monday

Work resumed Monday at Larrick Park following the delay of several week occasions by the extremely cold weather.

When it became impossible to work the ground as the freeze progressed, the 40 workers who were assigned the park project were reassigned to the Cutting Lake project, where they worked until Monday, when they were transferred back to the park.

The men are now busy on the base for the tennis court and the further widening of the channel of the Solomon River.

March 18, 1936 work at Larry Park steaming right along

After only a weeks work, since the men were transferred back to the Larrick Park from the Cutting lake project, where they worked during the subzero weather, a tremendous difference is noticeable in the appearance of the park.

The Circular dike and driveway around the park has been carried on about 100 feet, and the finish portion is now being graveled. The men are now filling in the north and south stretch at the east end of the park and the circle should be ready for graveling soon.

The gravel base for the tennis court is being laid, and when the court is completed it should be one of the finest in this part of the state. Our prediction is that tennis will soon become Lenora's most popular pastime.

Definite assurance has been given that the project will be fully completed, and Lenora can now look forward to the time when Larrick Park will be one of the city's finest assets.
