

Susan English, Ed.D.
Vice President for Academic Affairs and
Workforce Development
Thomas Nelson Community College

Susan English is the Vice President for Academic Affairs and Workforce Development at Thomas Nelson Community College. She holds a Doctorate in Community College Leadership from Morgan State University. She also holds a Master's of Education Degree in administration and leadership from Salisbury University and a graduate certificate in education measurement, statistics and evaluation from the University of Maryland, College Park. As Chief Academic Officer of Thomas Nelson, Susan has oversight for all academic and workforce processes and resources that support instruction, training, and community education at the College. In this role, she most enjoys developing new career and technical programming as well as transfer pathways. What gets Susan up in the morning is the drive to change lives and open doors through education and career training for the citizens of Virginia's Peninsula. Susan is married to Kevin English and together they have four children and three grandchildren. Another area of expertise for Susan is the ability to find fabulous shoes at bargain basement prices.