

White Pine Trail

The White Pine Trail is Michigan's longest Rail Trail State Park (formerly the Grand Rapids and Indiana Railroads), stretching a distance of 92 miles from Comstock Park to Cadillac. The trail is paved with asphalt for 22 miles from Comstock Park to Sand Lake, for 13 miles from Big Rapids to Reed City and for 1 mile in Cadillac. The balance of the trail has a surface of natural ballast and hard-packed gravel.

The trail is open along its entire length for all non-motorized recreational uses. Snowmobile use is restricted to the area from Russell Road (just north of M-57) to Cadillac. The trail passes through 31 municipalities and townships. At Reed City, the Trail crosses the Pere Marquette Rail-Trail. The meeting point for the two Trails can be accessed from the parking lot at the east end of Upton Street.

Parking & Trail Access: To Cadillac trailhead: Take US-131 north to the M-115 exit and go northwest for a half mile. Take North 41 Road one mile north to North 44 Road. Go west on North 44 Road approximately a half mile. To Big Rapids trailhead: Take US-131 to Big Rapids, exit 139. Take M-20 east to Maple Street. Proceed straight for 1/10 mile to the depot staging area; turn south. To Rogue River Park, Belmont, trailhead: Take US-131 to exit 95 (Post Dr.). Take Post Drive east to Belmont Road. Take Belmont Road 1/4 mile south to Rogue River Park entrance; turn left.

The corridor of the Fred Meijer White Pine Trail was formerly the Penn Central Railroad, also known as the Michigan Northern. The trail was dedicated on July 20, 1994. The park is managed by the Parks and Recreation Division of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources. Support of the White Pine Trail is coordinated by:
