

METROPOLITAN WATER DISTRICT
OF SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

Jacque McMillan
Principal Government & Regional Affairs Representative

Jacquelyn McMillan is a principal government and regional affairs representative for Metropolitan Water District of Southern California. For the past twelve years, Jacque has worked extensively with business and community leaders and elected officials throughout Los Angeles and Ventura counties to ensure that the southland's businesses and 19 million residents continue to have a safe, reliable and low-cost supply of drinking water. She has served as an officer, committee chair or active member for over thirteen business chamber or advocacy entities and has assisted these groups in developing policy positions that would enrich the business climate and quality of life for its residents.

Since 2003, Jacque has also served as an elected official on the Board of the Castaic Lake Water Agency.

Before she was promoted to a legislative advocate, Jacque worked five years in Metropolitan's real property section acquiring thousands of acres for Diamond Valley Lake, an 800,000 acre-foot reservoir that doubled the southland's storage capacity for drinking water. Prior to joining Metropolitan, Jacque worked for three petroleum companies managing 15 oil field projects in California and acquiring oil, gas and coal rights in over nine states and seventy-nine counties.

Jacque has a master's in business from California State University, Northridge; a bachelor's from University of Houston, and an associate degree from Houston Community College. Jacque is also a graduate of the Valley Leadership Institute and Leadership LA.

Jacque lives in the Santa Clarita Valley with her husband, Bill, and their four rescue cats, Shadow, Forrester, Squeak and Ray.
